By MICHAEL GOLDMITH

ALGIERS (AP)—A band of Secret Army Organization gunmen stormed into a Moslem clinic today and shot nine of the patients to death on their beds, police reported.

Ten other patients of the clinic were gravely wounded.

The 15 terrorists also exploded a charge in the European director's office, heavily damaging much of the building.

A police spokesman said it was the most brutal outrage committed by the Secret Army Organization since it began its terrorist campaign to sabotage the peace agreement between the French government and the nationalist rebels.

The Secret Army Organization is known as the OAS.

A source close to the secret army said the victims probably were members of the Moslem National Liberation Front. Police said nearly all the patients in the clinic were under treatment for ailments not connected with the Algerian war.

Elsewhere in Algiers, European gunmen killed three Moslem pedestrians and wounded several others.

Three secret army agents raided the head office of the government-owned Algerian railroads and got away with $320,000 in Algerian currency.

Two French soldiers were killed and several wounded Monday in a clash with a band of Moslem deserters from the French army 50 miles east of Oran, the French army command announced. It said seven of the deserters were killed.

Terrorists killed 10 persons and wounded 26 in Algiers and Oran Monday, authorities reported. Of the dead, five were European and five Moslem. All but one of the wounded were Moslems.

Service Set for Stadium This Year

The Ministerial Alliance has asked Roy Anderson to serve as chairman of arrangements for the Easter Sunrise Service this year, a job he has filled every year since the union service was first held in Hammond Stadium in 1937.

For the past seven years, the service has been held in a local church, but since Easter will be later this year (April 22) there will probably be more favorable weather and the traditional Sunrise Service is planned once again for Hammond Stadium.

In event of inclement weather the Easter Service will be held at the Unity Missionary Baptist Church, according to the Rev. Gordon Renshaw, President of the Hope Ministerial Alliance.

Hope Student Hurt in Wreck

Jerry McPherson, 21, Hope student at Henderson State Teachers College, was hurt in an accident over the weekend at Arkadelphia. The auto which he was driving ran down an embankment during a rainstorm.

He suffered a severe back injury. After treatment at an Arkadelphia hospital he was brought to Memorial Hospital here where he is likely to be confined from six weeks to two months. Don Booth, another Hope student riding with Jerry, was not seriously hurt.

U. S. Thinks Russia, China Split Is Real

By R. S. DEAN
Of the Palmer Newspapers
(Second of A Series)

Official Washington is convinced that the split between Soviet Russia and Red China is real and deep but this is not one of the factors leading itself to U. S. policy makers' new feeling of cautious optimism about the world situation.

This was made clear last week at the Department of State's two-day foreign policy briefing conference for several hundred newsmen from all parts of the country. We have not yet realized the full impact of the rift. It could bring us harm as well as good.

Because of the doubtful elements our policy makers are not inclined to look upon it with a great deal of comfort. Serious as are the differences, Washington does not yet regard Russia and Red China as irrevocably split but it cannot see them together 20 years from now.

In their relations with each other the Russians and Chinese have been acting more like nationalists than Communists. As Washington sees it, this may not be good. Failures in parts of the world could lead them to brinkmanship.

One thing is certain. The major influence on the Soviet bloc is the trouble with Red China. From 1918 down to the last year or two, Russia was able to use international communism for her own ends.

Yugoslavia broke with Russia in 1948 but this was not sufficient to force a major readjustment. But the split with Red China is something else because China is potentially the more powerful nation.

Russia and Red China are different. Russia has become a "have" nation and doesn't want to jeopardize her gains by precipitating in nuclear war. Furthermore, Soviet leaders profess to believe that all peoples eventually will turn to communism of their own free will.

On the other hand, Red China is a "have not" nation without so much to lose by war except in human life. Red Chinese leaders believe capitalism must be destroyed by force and so callous are they that the loss of 100 million or more of China's teeming population in the process would mean little to them.

The big question to Red China with her exploding population is the relocation of resources and here is one of the big rubs in the rift with Russia. The Peiping bosses believe Russia should use her resources to develop China as a friend and ally instead of helping neutrals and even some countries whose peoples are more friendly to the West. Recently China has been getting no economic assistance from Moscow.

Russia's withdrawal of her nuclear experts from China was one of the strongest indications of how really serious the split has become. Among other signs was the sending by Russia of a number of jets and helicopters to India during the border clashes with the Chinese Reds. Also apparently the Russians did not want the Chi-

Rebel Junta in Syria Brings More Fighting

By W-BB MCKINLEY

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—A ground-air clash of Syrian armed forces was reported today at rebel-held Aleppo and the Damascus junta resumed radio attacks on the mutineers, indicating a deadlock in negotiations to end the pro-Nasser uprising.

The crew of a passenger plane said on arriving here from Aleppo, in northern Syria, that ground troops there fired from the airport on Russian-built MIGs of the Syrian air force.

The shooting was described as intense. The crewmen said they heard that the fighters were trying to blow up a transmitter of the Aleppo radio, which was calling itself the Voice of the Arab Republic.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic and a new commander of the pro-U.A.R. army rebellion appealed for a bloodless solution of the military crisis.

The rebels called for a truce. They said they would do no shooting because of the danger of injuring civilians, but declared they were strong enough to win victory.

The Damascus regime, which took over in a bloodless coup March 28, had broadcast an ultimatum giving the rebels 90 minutes to surrender. This expired without any announced reaction in Aleppo.

A statement issued by Nasser's office in Cairo said the president, who lost the Syrian branch of the U.A.R. in a revolt last Sept. 28, is ready to exert every effort aimed at preserving Syria and averting bloodshed.

From the rebel-held Syrian city of Aleppo, 400 miles to the north-east, Col. Luayy Atassi broadcast a call to the military junta running the Damascus government for a truce.

Atassi announced that he has taken command of the forces in Syria's northern region, which rebelled Monday against the junta and called for reunion with the United Arab Republic.

Atassi's truce appeal was broadcast shortly after Radio Damascus transmitted a junta ultimatum to the Aleppo garrison to surrender or be considered in mutiny and punished accordingly.

Implying that the junta already had troops allied, Atassi urged it to halt movements toward Aleppo to prevent bloodshed and preserve unity to the ranks.

The rebel radio, which described itself as the voice of the U.A.R., said the colonel had imposed a curfew on Aleppo "to pave the way for the northern command to settle the national problem quietly and wisely." To protect civilians, it said, the rebel garrison will not fire a shot "and we shall not raise our arms against our beloved army."

This followed an air raid scare. An hour before the announcement of Atassi's assumption of command, an excited voice on the rebel radio said "planes of secessionists"—meaning the air force of the high command in Damascus—were trying to bomb the Aleppo transmitter, 40 miles south of that city. The speaker appealed to the U.A.R. to send planes and paratroops to help the rebels.

Atassi canceled the appeal. "We ask our Egyptian brethren to be patient and postpone now sending any reinforcements because our military position is strong and we can resist until victory," Atassi said.

Nasser's subsequent statement in Cairo was pegged to the air raid story.

The statement said Nasser is prepared to take a hand in the parties concerned in Damascus. Aleppo and other civilian and military commands agree.

Twist Banned by New Wrinkles

ACUSHNET, Mass. (AP)—The Twist has been banned here because of new wrinkles. The three-member Board of Selectmen outlawed the Twist Monday night because of variations in the dance, which Selectman Clement St. Amand termed "the most vulgar I've seen in my life."

St. Amand said if people can't do the Twist properly "they shouldn't be allowed to do it at all."

Bowing to the decree, officials of the Acushnet Junior High School Parent-Teachers Association agreed to discontinue weekly record hops.

Home Gifts to Astronauts Under Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government officials said today the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is looking into acceptance of furnished $24,000 homes by the seven Mercury astronauts.

The homes were offered by the Houston Home Builders Association and the astronauts' business adviser announced acceptance.

One government official, asking not to be quoted by name, said the matter is entirely in the hands of NASA, and that the White House has not been consulted or taken any initiative in the case.

NASA presumably is inquiring into the propriety and legality of the acceptance of the homes.

The New York Times reported today that the White House had begun an inquiry.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, a Washington dispatch to the Times added, had earlier given its tacit consent to the astronauts' accepting the houses.

A spokesman said the agency had found that there was no law or regulation to prevent the astronauts from taking such gifts, the story said.

When the offer was first disclosed last week, White House officials tended to dismiss it at an advertising promotion on the part of the Houston builders.

The free homes were offered early last month in a letter from Angelo Mascari, president of the association, to Lt. Col. John A. Powers, the Project Mercury spokesman.

Injuries Fatal to Former Hope Resident

Services were held Monday at Dallas.

Crazed Greyhound Menaces Child

ENFIELD, England (AP)—A crazed greyhound burst into a cottage here, killed a puppy and menaced a 5-month-old boy.

The baby was rescued by his crippled mother, Joyce Barrett, who crawled from her wheelchair and dragged him into another room.

Mrs. Barrett, 21, had both her legs amputated in childhood after polio.

The greyhound, a stray maddened by hunger, ripped at curtains and chair covers for half an hour and then rushed out. It was found later in a school yard and killed.

Officers Here Recover a Stolen Car

City Policemen Moses and Clark recovered a stolen car and arrested Charles Clifton Mann, 40, of Springfield, last night. Officers said the auto was stolen about an hour earlier at Texarkana. Mann was turned over to the Texarkana Police Department for prosecution.

Local officers also reported that an auto driven by Charles Willie Stuart and owned by Hope Auto Co. ran into the back end of Neal Hopkins' auto which had stopped at a stop sign. There was minor damage. Stuart was charged with failure to have a driver's license.

The accident occurred at West Division and Elm Streets. Yesterday near Orlin school a school bus driven by R. F. Orlin and a car driven by John A. Ellis collided with very little damage resulting.

Woman Swindled Out of $3,200

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—An elderly Negro woman was swindled out of $3,200 in a "pigeon dropping racket," police reported here Monday.

Officers said Mrs. Camille Harvey, 64, of North Little Rock, told them two other Negro women found in a telephone booth if she would put up a deposit.

The victim said she returned home and got the money from under a mattress and gave it to take one of two or both pilgrim-age to the old historical homes and other points of interest.

The money, Mrs. Harvey said, was to have finished paying her house mortgage next month.

Calvary Baptists Plan Meet

Revival services will begin Wednesday, April 4 at the Calvary Baptist Church on West Avenue B. Services will be held nightly including Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

J. D. Passmore, pastor, will be the evangelist for the services during the first week and Rev. Dale Barnett, Missionary to the White River Baptist Association will be the Evangelist during the second week. The meeting will close on April 15.

A special feature of the first week will be the "Sunday School at Night Program." Each teacher in the Sunday School will meet with their class at 7:30 p.m. to pray for the revival and for class prospects. At 8 p.m. everyone will return to the auditorium for the evangelistic service.

During the second week beginning on April 10, day services will be held each morning at 10 a.m. with Rev. Barnett as the speaker. These day services will continue through Friday, April 13.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government booklet on radioactive fallout and how to survive soon will no longer be available in post offices.

Officials said Monday night surplus copies of the booklet now in various post offices will be sent to a civil defense center at Battle Creek, Mich.

The booklet will still be available through civil defense offices. A Post Office spokesman said it was arranged when the booklet was first put out in January that it would remain in the post offices for three months.

Court Asked to Bar Prayer in Schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court was asked today to declare the recitation of prayer in public schools a violation of the Constitution.

Counsel for five parents of nine children in schools in New Hyde Park, N.Y., argued that the offering of prayer in classrooms there breached the principle of separation of church and state.

The parents objected to the speaking of a prayer recommended by the New York State Board of Regents for use in all public schools of the state.

The 22-word prayer: "Almighty God, we acknowledge our dependence upon Thee, and we beg Thy blessings upon us, our parents, our teachers, and our country."

The objecting parents included two members of the Jewish faith, one member of the Unitarian Church, one member of the Society for Ethical Culture, and one professed nonbeliever.

William J. Butler, New York City attorney for the parents, complained that the prayer involved is part of a recognized drive to introduce religious education and observances in public schools.

He said the New York action rejected the belief on which the Founding Fathers built this government, a belief in the necessity for absolute separation of church and state.

Each of the eight justices questioned Butler, as he pressed the contention that the recitation of the prayer amounted to a teaching of religion.

"There is no question but that its purpose is to bring children into religious activity," Butler said at one point.

"Is that a bad thing?" asked Justice John M. Harlan.

"No," Butler replied. "We are friends of religion. But we feel the best safety of religion and freedom of religion is to keep it out of public schools."

Bertram B. Daiker, attorney of Port Washington, N.Y., arguing in reply on behalf of the New Hyde Park School Board, contended, "The Constitution is incapable of being so interpreted as to require that the wall of separation of church and state become an Iron Curtain."

Chief Justice Earl Warren recalled that each day's Supreme Court session is opened by the court crier who asks, "God save the United States and this honorable court."

The chief justice said he won't continue on Page Two

Bipartisan Plan for UN Bonds Hits Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bipartisan compromise proposal for financial aid to the United Nations encountered unexpectedly heavy Republican opposition at a conference of GOP senators today.

The proposal, pending before the Senate, would give President Kennedy discretionary authority to lend the United Nations up to $100 million or buy its bonds in that amount.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said another party conference might be necessary because of demands from some of the group for additional limitations on Kennedy's authority.

He said there is "grave doubt" differences can be ironed out in time to permit the quick and overwhelming Senate passage indicated at the time the compromise was reached among the leaders.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., one of the architects of the compromise, told newsmen "the administration is not out of the woods yet insofar as the United Nations is concerned."

Kennedy originally asked authority to purchase $100 million of U.N. 25-year bonds carrying 2 percent interest. Aiken countered with a proposal for a three-year $100 million loan to the United Nations at interest rates equal to those paid by the United States on money it borrows.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved the bond purchase plan, but made $75 million of the proposed $100 million purchase contingent on matching purchases by other nations.

The compromise, giving Kennedy authority for either bond purchases or outright loans, had appeared to smooth the way for Senate passage.

Democratic congressional leaders said after meeting with Kennedy today that the President expressed satisfaction with the U.N. bond compromise.

President Visits in the Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy paid a surprise visit to the Senate, and found things just about as they were when he gave up his seat there to enter the White House.

The former senator from Massachusetts stepped into the Senate chamber Monday for the first time since taking office as president.

Sens. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., were debating terms of a federal irrigation project in California. Four other senators were on hand. The spectator and press galleries were almost empty.

"That's the way it was when I left the Senate," Kennedy told Morse in an apparent reference to the almost deserted chamber.

Kennedy dropped in first at an informal reception given by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana to inaugurate a fancy new conference room in the Capitol's east wing.

While the Mansfield reception was going, with two bars and a table loaded with food, Morse was eulogizing in a Senate speech for a ban on serving hard liquor in the Capitol.

Kennedy didn't take a drink at the reception.

$219 Millions

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—State Treasurer L. A. Clayton said Monday revenues handled by his office have increased by $13.6 million during the current fiscal year which started last July 1. Clayton said $219,224,567 passed through his office during the first nine months of the fiscal year, including $75,161,148 collected in general revenues and $55,825,186 in special revenues.

It's almost impossible to get in the public eye without irritating it.

Law Teacher Takes Over White's Post

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Stepping into Byron R. White's shoes as No. 2 man in the Justice Department is Nicholas de Borchta-Katzenbach, an ex-law professor who honed up on his studies while a prisoner of war.

Katzenbach, assistant attorney general and chief of the department's office of legal counsel, was appointed Monday by President Kennedy to succeed White. White has been named to the Supreme Court. Both nominations must be confirmed by the Senate.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said Katzenbach's "initiative, judgment and ability have been invaluable in the last 12 months."

Like White, Katzenbach, 40, was a Rhodes scholar at Oxford and studied law at Yale.

He got his undergraduate degree at Princeton and later taught law at Yale and the University of Chicago. His Justice Department biography laconically breezes over one chapter in his life with the notation: "Also was in the U.S. Air Force from 1942 to 1945."

He left Princeton as a junior to enter the Army Air Corps in World War II, became a bomber-navigator and was shot down over the Mediterranean. The Germans clapped him into a prisoner of war camp for two years.

"It was terribly boring," complained Katzenbach.

To make it less so, he turned to his books, and did so well that he contemplated his final two years at Princeton within a few weeks of his return and was graduated cum laude.

It was White, a school mate at Yale, who talked Katzenbach into joining the Justice Department.

Katzenbach, who was not active in politics, had been studying international law on a fellowship at Geneva.

Katzenbach has served as a member of the American Bar Association Committee on the law of outer space, was special consultant to the secretary of state in connection with the United Nations' ad hoc committee on the law of outer space and is co-author — with Prof. Leon Lipson of Yale — of a study of "Legal Literature of Air Space."

Decision on Printing Bids Soon

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Asst. Atty. Gen. Jack Holt Jr. said a decision was expected to be reached today on whether bidders on state contracts and increase their bids after such bids have been opened.

Secretary of State Nancy Hall was delayed since Saturday declaring two bidders on 15 state printing and binding contracts, pending the attorney general's ruling.

At the time, Mrs. Hall said two bidding companies had sought to increase their bids.

Mrs. Hall said 12 of the bids called for $15,000 performance bonds while two required $10,000 and one $5,000.

Arkansas Lithographing and Printing Co. of Little Rock and the Hurley Printing Co., of El Dorado, were the firms attempting to increase their bids. Each had submitted $10,000 bonds.

ALP filed the original suit which resulted in Parkin Printing Co. of Little Rock losing the 15 bids worth nearly $1 million, because its president, Harry Parkin, was a member of the state Highway Commission.

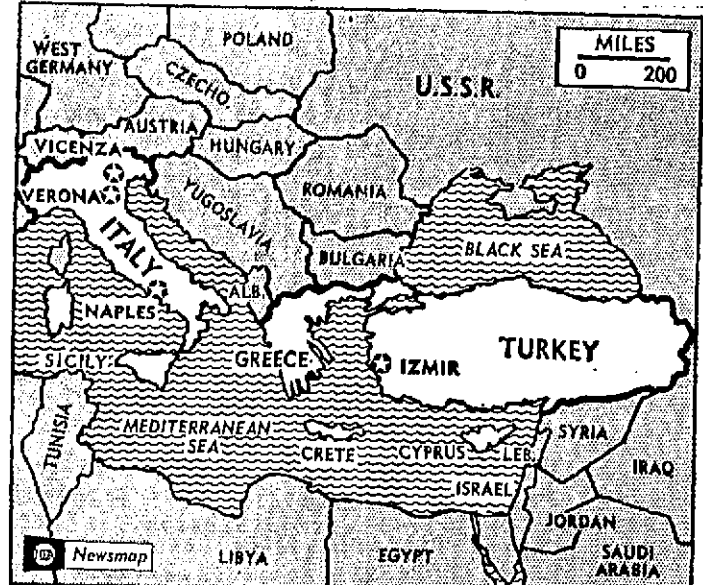

He has since resigned.

The Parkin firm was among the 17 bidders.

State officials report most departments remain short of supplies as a result of the continuing controversy.

This year, the white tropic-weight wool suit will be correct summer wear in town as well as at a vacation resort. The comfort, wrinkle-resistance and shape retention of wool makes it a perfect choice for summer wear.

Says Faubus' Gang Plans Some Deals

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Governatorial candidate Kenneth Coffelt said Monday he may buy television time "to tell the truth about what the Faubus gang is now conducting for the people of Arkansas."

Coffelt, a Little Rock attorney and only one of two officially announced candidates for the Arkansas governorship, indicated he may appear on television either tonight or Wednesday night.

Rep. Dale Alford of Little Rock also has entered the race.

Few of the dozen or so prospective candidates for the post being vacated by the retiring Gov. Orval E. Faubus have jumped completely into the race.

Most are taking the view of Marvin Melton of Jonesboro who already has set up temporary campaign headquarters in Little Rock but refuses to officially announce.

"I needed a place from which to contact my friends and for them to know where I can be reached," Melton said while settling in the campaign quarters.

The Jonesboro businessman and chairman of the board of the Arkansas State Chamber of Commerce said he would announce his plans "as soon as I can work out some of my problems."

State Sen. Olden Hendrix of Prescott said Monday he definitely would not join in the scramble for the governorship.

Hendrix, rumored as a possible candidate, said he will seek re-election to the Senate.

Faubus has remained aloof from the situation, refusing at this early date to lend his support to any candidate.

But, the governor says, if the situation warrants it, he might use his influence on behalf of his choice.

Space Try Is Set for Next Friday

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—After months of frustrating delays, the initial test flight of the high-energy Centaur space rocket is set for Friday.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced the two-stage rocket will be launched on an intended ballistic trajectory lasting 15 minutes. The vehicle should reach an altitude of 300 miles before plunging back into the Atlantic Ocean, 1,175 miles from the starting point. No payload will be carried.

The test will provide the first flight data on how powerful liquid hydrogen will behave in space. This supercool fuel, which must be kept at a temperature of 423 degrees below zero, provides 4 percent better performance than chemical fuels employed in present U.S. rocket engines.

Two liquid hydrogen engines with total thrust of 30,000 pounds drive the second stage of the 107-foot Centaur. The first stage is a modified Atlas missile with 367,000 pounds of thrust. This combination is capable of placing 8,500-pound satellites into earth orbit, landing 2,300 pounds on the moon, or hurling 1,300 pounds to Mars or Venus.

These weights are considerably greater than the capability of this nation's biggest present space booster, the Atlas-Agena B. Centaur is expected to fill a gap between Agena B and the more powerful Saturn class of boosters being developed.

Problems encountered in developing liquid hydrogen as a propellant delayed the launching nearly a year. NASA feels the troubles have been licked, but officials do not expect a perfect flight on the first try.

Ignition of the second stage is not a primary objective. Officials are more interested in how liquid hydrogen operates in the weightless environment of space.

A television camera, designed to snap a picture every two seconds, has been mounted on the forward bulkhead of the hydrogen tank to observe what happens to the hydrogen — whether it curls up in a ball, sticks to the side of the tank or becomes a gas. More than 500 channels of information will be radioed during flight.

The findings will set the pattern for future Centaur research flights, at least seven of which are planned before useful payloads are carried. Liquid hydrogen also will be used on upper stages of Saturn and later Nova space rockets.

About 1,300 company manufacture drugs today, with no single company accounting for as much as 10 per cent of total sales, according to the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association.

Proclamation

Mayor Douglas today officially proclaimed two weeks for Hope's annual Clean Up—Paint Up—Fix Up campaign and urged every citizen to participate in this year's program.

Today's proclamation was as follows:

WHEREAS, the general health and welfare of our citizens depend upon wholesome surroundings arising from good clean living conditions, and

WHEREAS, the lives and property of our people are endangered by fire and accidents caused by littered and cluttered conditions in homes, factories, places of public assembly, alleys and streets and

WHEREAS, a clean and beautiful community is a proud and prosperous one and

WHEREAS, unity of effort is required for future development of our community,

THEREFORE, I, Frank Douglas, Mayor of the City of Hope, do hereby designate the week of April 2-14 inclusive as Clean Up Week and most respectfully call upon all departments of this city, its commercial organizations, civic clubs, schools, churches, boys and girls clubs and all other association and our people in general to take an active part in this constructive program of community improvement to insure its success.

nese in Laos as expressed by their preference to negotiate the matter at Geneva. There now seems to be considerable hope in Washington that the Laotian matter will be settled.

In fact, there is reason to believe that the Russians do not want to see the Red Chinese over-run Southeast Asia any more than we do.

China is woefully weak in agriculture and needs millions of more tons of food every year to feed her growing population. The food situation already is serious and the Red Chinese look covetously to other areas.

Although the Russian scientists have departed, the Chinese claim they will have the nuclear bomb shortly on their own and there seems to be little inclination in Washington to doubt this. When that time comes no one can foresee what the Chinese will do and this apparently is as much of a source of worry to the Russians as it is to us.

Washington admits that, while we do not recognize Red China and have no intention of doing so, there can be no effective world disarmament agreement without including the Chinese.

Russia, comparatively conservative, has been a restraining influence on the Peiping government. That influence is lost as they go their separate ways.

The American government's strategy with regard to Europe, Africa and Latin America is clear but there is no hesitancy by our policy makers in saying that the opposite is true about the Far East. This has always been an area of emotional conflict and the situation hasn't crystallized.

Washington officials will not put it into so many words but an observer gets the impression that there is a strong feeling today that General MacArthur should have been left alone in his conduct of the Korean war at a time when only this country had the atomic bomb.

Our policy makers do say that we never decided on a political objective in Korea. We had a choice of stopping at the 38th parallel; at Pyongyang after the fall of that Red capital, or of pursuing the Red Chinese "volunteers" across the Yalu to their air depots in Manchuria, as General MacArthur recommended. It is said that strong arguments can be made for or against any of these three choices.

MacArthur's supporters have always contended that if he had been given a free hand we would have won a military victory in which event Washington probably would not be worrying today about Red China as a menace.

But Korea is water over the dam and there is no intention on the part of our government today to let Red China take over South Asia. Since Red China, despite her internal problems, isn't likely to fall apart there must be means of stopping her. Presently, Washington sees the need of a confrontation with Japan at one end, India and Pakistan at the other and with Indonesia, supported by the Philippines, in between.

We stand firm behind Chiang Kai-shek and his Chinese Nationalist Republic on Formosa but are realistic enough to realize that he cannot retake the mainland. Formosa has made tremendous economic gains and is second only in education to Japan in the Far East. Washington concedes that if China had accomplished half as much on the mainland he would still be there.

Nationalist China's membership in the United Nations seems secure for the present. Probably because of the split in the Communist bloc, the Red China-U. N. matter is not breathing down our necks now as it was a year ago.

The United States has other problems in the Far East but the main one, of course, is Red China. That problem exists whether Red China is friend or foe of Russia.

Our policy makers hope to see our strategy in Asia taking definite shape within a year and that in the meantime our friends there stand by us.

dered if there would be any difference if instead of the crer making the plea the court would require every litigant and lawyer to deliver the school prayer.

"You are now approaching the word 'compulsion,'" said Daiker. "There is no compulsion that any pupil say our school prayer."

Parents of New York children may ask that they be excused from saying the prayer or that they leave the classroom during its recitation.

Porter R. Chandler, New York City attorney, argued on behalf of parents of 37 pupils in favor of the recitation of the prayer.

He emphasized a contention that the five objecting parents had shown no injury to themselves and had no right to impose their views upon the vast majority of their fellow citizens.

New Marshals Are Confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate confirmed by voice vote today President Kennedy's nominations of these new marshals for Arkansas:

Dan M. Douglas, for western Arkansas, succeeding Jay Neal.

Alfred P. Henderson, eastern Arkansas, succeeding Richard Beal Kidd.

It also confirmed the reappointment of Robert E. Haubert as U.S. Attorney for Mississippi.

Allen-Huckabee Vows Read
Miss Dolores Jane Huckabee and Russell Steven Allen exchanged vows in a candlelight ceremony at 8 p.m. March 18 at Epworth Methodist Church, in Houston. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Elmore Huckabee and Mrs. Phillip D. Allen and the late Mr. Allen of Houston.

The Rev. Elza Love officiated at the double-ring ceremony. The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a formal gown of pure silk, bouquet taffeta and re-embroidered alencon lace. She wore a bridal veil which fell from a crown of pearls and carried gardenias and white roses.

Mrs. L. C. Harrison played the organ and John Mundy sang. Maid of honor was Miss Sandy Proffer and bridesmaids were Mrs. Raymond Huckabee and Mrs. Harvey Cole Jr. Douglas P. Allen, brother of the groom, served as best man. Other groomsmen were Louis Garcia Jr. and Raymond Huckabee.

Flower girl was Peggy Lynn Huckabee and ringbearer was Lee Cole. Candlelighters were Darwin Huckabee and Bennie Smith.

After the ceremony a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

After a wedding trip to Colorado the couple will be at home in Houston where they are both attending the University of Houston. The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. C. J. Welschenberger and L. E. Huckabee of Hope.

Bridal Shower for Miss Hendrix

Miss Gloria Hendrix of Arkadelphia, bride-elect of Billy Hicks, who lives on Columbus Road, was honored with a miscellaneous bridal shower on Saturday, night, March 31 at the Columbus School. Hostesses were Mrs. Hugh Gilbert, Mrs. Huie Van Ryser, Mrs. F. O. Middlebrooks and Mrs. Lee Hicks.

The honoree, wearing a gray suit, pinned a bridal corsage at her shoulder. Dogwood decorated the large table holding the gaily wrapped gifts. Miss Hendrix received some sage advice from the 30 attending, when they broke balloons containing questions she might ask.

From a table overlaid with a white lace cloth and decorated with white lilies, bridal wreath, and white candles, frosted lime punch, cake squares, nuts, and mints were served. Mrs. James Hendrix of Arkadelphia, mother of the guest of honor, was an out-of-town guest.

Bridge Group Meets

Mrs. Al Graves Jr. entertained with three tables of bridge on Thursday, March 29 at her home. Guest were members of a local bridge club plus an extra table of players. Mrs. Clyde Monts, Mrs. Hunter Long of Philadelphia Pa., Mrs. Tom Ed Hays and Mrs. Ralph Emerson.

Mrs. E. P. Young Jr. and Mrs. George Frazier won high score and second high prizes, respectively. Mrs. Ralph Emerson won the game prize. The hostess served strawberry meringue dessert with coffee for refreshments.

Bride-Elect Honored

Miss Mary Watson of Hope, bride-elect, of Hugh L. Barnhart of Shreveport was complimented with a miscellaneous bridal shower Thursday night with the women of the Washington Baptist Church as hostesses. Upon arrival, the honoree was presented a corsage of white miniature carnations. The bride-elect received many lovely gifts presented to her by re-embroidered alencon lace. She wore a bridal veil which fell from a crown of pearls and carried gardenias and white roses.

Refreshments carrying out the color scheme of yellow and white were served with Mrs. Jamie Boyett, presiding over the punch bowl and Mrs. H. L. Pinegar serving individual cakes. Miss Watson wore a tulle dress of yellow embroidered cotton.

Miss McDowell Honored

Miss Judy Rae McDowell, bride-elect of Jimmy May, was honored recently at a miscellaneous bridal shower given by Penny Pickard of Richardson, Texas. Forty of the honoree's classmates attended the shower held in Smith-Carroll Hall at Texas Woman's University in Denton.

The guests made aqua and white rice bags for use at the April wedding. Penny is Judy's roommate at the University where the bride to be is a senior sociology major.

Mrs. Wassell WSCS Hostess
Circle 6 of WSCS of the First Methodist Church met Monday, April 2 in the home of Mrs. Emmet Wassell. Mrs. Bob Turner, chairman, opened the meeting with prayer. Mrs. Bill Roulton conducted the program "The Light of Faith."

The following officers were elected for the coming year: chairman, Mrs. Arch Wylie, vice chairman, Mrs. Cleo Smith and treasurer, Mrs. Henry Fenwick. The hostess served cookies and coffee to 13 members and one guest, Mrs. E. P. Young Jr.

Court Rules Favorable to Union

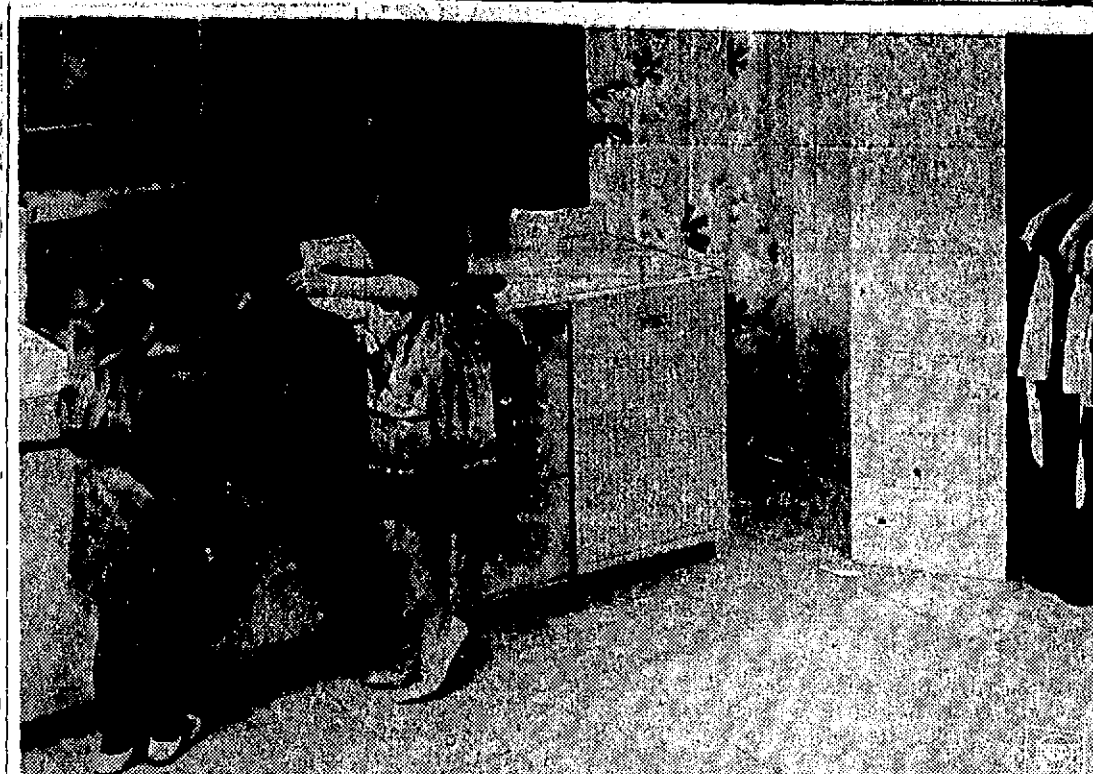

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court ruled today that a Union may have the right to picket a construction job even if the contractor is paying union wages.

The ruling came in a Washington County case filed by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers against J. S. Davis and Sons, prime contractor and Acme Electric Co., a sub-contractor on construction of a plant at Springdale for Prez-N-Stor, Inc.

Washington Chancery Court had enjoined the union from picketing the construction site because the Davis firm used all union labor and the Acme firm showed it was paying union wages even to its non-union employees.

The lower court found that such wages were not being paid at the time the picketing started, but were being paid when the case came to trial and the court enjoined the union from picketing.

The Supreme Court said the union contended it had a right to picket because the Acme firm was not paying union wages on

Governor Calls Himself Lame Duck

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus laughingly referred to himself as a lame duck today and appeared more interested in discussing his proposed writing career than politics.

Faubus declined to comment on critical remarks made by some of his political foes since he announced Saturday night he would not seek a fifth term.

In direct reply to a charge that he would back another candidate and try to keep control of the governor's office, Faubus said:

"I think it is traditional that a lame duck doesn't have much influence. These people might guess wrong about what I will do. What I could do, or what they can do."

Faubus said the performance and attitude of the candidates will have more influence on selection of the next governor "than the remarks of any self appointed spokesman."

Faubus said he very likely will return to his hometown of Huntsville for a time after he leaves office in January. He declined to discuss his plans beyond that, but said he has had "a number of offers from the industrial world in Arkansas and elsewhere."

Meanwhile, Faubus said he is reserving the right to take a hand in this summer's political race either in opposition to a candidate he does not like, or in support of one he would like to see in the governor's chair.

Faubus said the writing he said Saturday night he would like to do might encompass three, four or five books.

"I've already written one about the war," he said. "It's about the humor, pathos and color of war, not the dry statistics."

Faubus said he wrote this book during World War II while he was serving as an officer with the 320th Infantry Regiment in Europe. He has rejected offers to have it published, he said, because he wanted to do some polishing and did not have the time during the past eight years.

Faubus said a second proposed book definitely would deal with the 1957 Little Rock integration crisis. He declined to say how he would handle the topic.

Faubus said he would also like to do a book on the Ozark Mountains and mountain people.

"Many pose as experts on the Ozarks, but none has had full enough knowledge to please us hillbillies," he said.

Faubus visited his office today long enough to dictate a form letter which his staff will send to people who contacted him during the past several weeks urging him to run again. He promised such a letter in Saturday night's television speech.

Arkansan Resigns

WASHINGTON (AP)—A native Arkansan, James S. Moose Jr. of Morrilton, is among three ambassadors whose resignations have been accepted by President Kennedy. Moose is now serving in Africa. Retiring with him, after long careers, are Andrew G. Lynch and Francis H. Russell.

three other jobs in the county. The Supreme Court said even though the question was moot since the Frez-N-Stor job has been completed, it considered the case because it felt the question at issue should be decided in the public interest.

The Supreme Court also affirmed. A Faulkner County circuit court judgment of $19,775 to the Glover Joyner family for injuries suffered in a car accident. Defendants were J. P. Pilgrim, Robert Cheek and James Bostic. Pilgrim appealed.

A Hot Springs Circuit Court decision Employers Mutual Casualty Co. was not liable in a traffic accident in which Mrs. Paul E. Irvin was awarded a $5,000 judgment against another insurance company which represented one of the principals in the mishap.

A Midsummer Night's Dream

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: They call me a wanton but I'm just a poor girl from the mountains of Tennessee who never had anything in her life but drudgery and hard knocks until I met a man twice my age (I'm 18), who saw me as I wanted to be, not as I was.

We met in midsummer when the corn was ripening and the day heat unbearable, we'd go wading in the creeks, dance on moonlit roads to the music of his car radio and, when dawn turned the sky pink, lie on the cool green meadow grass and be lulled to sleep by the sweet singing of little birds. What more could a queen ask for?

I was a queen, this man my king, and never-never land our kingdom. Now we are facing reality. His divorce is final but the judge has awarded the ex-wife so much alimony for herself and their two children that I shall have to work my fingers to the bone if and when this man and I marry. He wants to go his own way for a while, which breaks my heart. He and his ex-wife work in the same office. Should I go back to the mountains of Tennessee? —Country girl

Dear Country Girl: When a man wants time to think it over, he's as good as saying, "This is it." Be the first to tell him good-bye and be on your way. You can't undo what's done. All that matters now is what this experience has done to you. I'm not saying it was right but, if it has strengthened your character and given you the will to raise above surrounding conditions, there has been compensation. I hope for your sake this is so.

Dear Helen: When my present husband and I married four years ago he said, "Honey, what's mine is yours. Open all my mail. I've got nothing to hide from you." This I do and he hollers to high heaven, "Keep your nose out of my business. Do I open your mail?" I always opened my first husband's mail and nothing was ever said. Am I a wife or just a housekeeper? —Baffled

Dear Baffled: Regardless of what your husband said in that first rosy glow of love, you in your infinite wisdom (after all you've been married twice) should have respected his rights. Letters are intended only for the individual to whom they are addressed. For a wife to read her husband's mail is to tread on perilous ground.

Dear Helen: My girl friend's sister is a meddler. She's made nervous wrecks of us both and cost me a pretty penny in doctor's bills. When she caudron stops boiling, she stirs it up again. Whatever can we do with a young witch like that? Why does she pick on us? —Harried

Dear Harried: The "young witch" of a sister must be jealous. Perhaps you two are happier than she. Find out what's wrong in her own life and, if possible, with your girl friend's help—correct it. Or, if not practical, encourage the sister to talk out her worries. Just doing that will help.

Send your problem to Helen Worden Erskine. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and address her care of this newspaper. Helpful leaflets available. Write for "Jealousy."

Remarks by Senator Are Attacked

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Two leaders of the Kennedy administration called odd and nonsensical the suggestion of Sen. Henry M. Jackson that the President pays too much attention to the United Nations in setting foreign policy.

Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, Senate assistant Democratic floor leader, struck back Sunday at the Democratic Senator from Washington but did not mention him by name.

Jackson, chairman of the Democratic National Committee in the 1960 campaign, recently suggested the American delegation to the United Nations had become a sort of a second Foreign Office and tended to create confusion in U.S. policy making.

Stevenson said he found Jackson's reasoning very odd and declared: "Just the contrary is true. The President seeks the advice of his secretary of state; he seeks my advice; he seeks the advice of the State Department. And, as a result of these consultations, policy emerges which we try to execute here."

Humphrey charged that Jackson's suggestions that the U.S. delegate to the United Nations should have no more to do with policy making than U.S. ambassadors in major world capitals doesn't make much sense.

Stevenson and Humphrey made their remarks on a recorded television interview—ABC-TV "Adlai Stevenson Reports."

Jackson had declared the best hope for peace lies in the power of the Atlantic community rather than in the United Nations.

Easter Services Are Canceled

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Secretary of State Nancy Hall canceled the traditional capital Easter sunrise service today at the request of its sponsors.

A racial dispute arose last month when Mrs. Hall refused to permit integration of the program.

The sponsors, the Directors of Religious Education of Little Rock, had asked Mrs. Hall if Negroes could appear on the program. She said no, although Negroes traditionally have been permitted to attend the services.

Mrs. Hall got a letter from the DRE today stating simply that the organization had decided against holding the services. It did not mention the integration controversy.

Mrs. Hall and the DRE had been scheduled to take over sponsorship of the services this year from the United Christian Youth Council, the sponsor for the past 18 years.

The Youth Council has disbanded, she said.

A recent survey of 135 Japanese girls born and reared in the United States showed they were 1.6 inches taller than girls of like age in Japan.

Hiss Thinks Statement Will Aid Him

NEW YORK (AP)—Alger Hiss says a statement in a new book by Richard M. Nixon should help vindicate him of perjury charges that sent him to prison more than a decade ago.

But a spokesman for the former vice president said in Los Angeles that the statement was the result of a researcher's error that slipped by Nixon when he checked the manuscript.

The statement, which appears in the book, "Six Crises," says that FBI agents had obtained Hiss' old typewriter which was a central factor in the former State Department employee's controversial trials.

Hiss described this Sunday night as a flat contradiction of past government contentions.

Hiss was convicted in 1950 of perjury for denying he passed government secrets to a confessed Soviet spy courier, the late Whittaker Chambers. Nixon was the chief congressional investigator of Hiss.

The Nixon statement was first cited in an article by Fred J. Cook in the current issue of the Nation magazine.

Cook quoted from the book: "On December 13 (1948), FBI agents found the typewriter. On December 15, the critical last day, an expert from the FBI typed exact copies of the incriminating documents on the old Woodstock machine and had them flown up to New York as exhibits for the members of the grand jury to see."

Cook recalled that a government affidavit by the late Assistant FBI Director Earl J. Connelley opposing a Hiss motion for a new trial had sworn that the FBI "does not have in its possession and never did have in its possession any typewriter known, believed, or considered to be the Woodstock machine" owned by Hiss.

It was Hiss' defense counsel who, on April 16, 1949, obtained the typewriter the defense later put in evidence. As Hiss put it, "It wasn't the typewriter itself, but a fake that was planted on us."

An unidentified spokesman for Nixon issued a statement to the Los Angeles Times Sunday night, saying it was prepared after a conference with Nixon. "At the time of the grand jury proceedings in December 1948 — which were of course, secret — there were reports to the effect that the FBI had found the old Hiss Woodstock typewriter. However, the typewriter was not actually found and produced in evidence until the time of Hiss' first trial for perjury," the statement said.

"On Dec. 13, 1948, the FBI experts conclusively demonstrated that certain of the secret State Department documents and a letter that Mrs. Hiss admittedly typed on the Woodstock had been typed on the same machine."

Hoffa Takes to Political Campaign

DETROIT (AP) - President James R. Hoffa of the Teamsters Union was out on the political road today with a blast at George Romney and the Kennedy administration and a good word for Nelson A. Rockefeller.

He accused the administration of interfering in the steel negotiations in what he called a "political maneuver."

The union chief, opening his union's DRIVE movement Sunday night, let go with a salvo on Michigan state and national politics before an audience of more than 2,000 union members.

DRIVE is the Teamsters' newly announced Democratic Republican-Independent Voter Education program through which Hoffa says he hopes his huge organization can wield political influence. Hoffa says the Teamsters represent more than five million votes.

Hoffa, rapping Romney, the probable Republican candidate for governor of Michigan, said, "So far, all that Romney has accepted across the bargaining table as American Motors president he seems to be trying to escape through legislation."

Hoffa said that right now incumbent Democratic Gov. John B. Swainson is the man for labor.

The Teamsters head, referring to the labor contract agreement in steel, said, "The government used pressure to settle the contract so that there would be no increase in prices. This was a political maneuver and I'll wager certain grades of steel will go up in price in a few months, anyway."

Hoffa said the Teamsters "would never accept a contract such as the one reached by the steel industry negotiators."

The steel contract, yet to be ratified by United Steelworkers members, provides for an estimated 10 cents an hour in fringe benefit improvements but no wage increase.

Hoffa, referring to Rockefeller, said the New York governor is the "most appealing candidate for the worker for the 1964 presidency."

Romney is on a leave of absence as president of American Motors Corp. to make his campaign for governor. He is a candidate for the Republican nomination and is expected to oppose Democrat Swainson in the fall election.

Real Cost of Steel Peace Is Debated

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - The real cost of the steel labor peace as measured in squeeze on profits and pressure on prices is up to day for sharp debate.

The Kennedy administration hails the pact—rated as a 10-cent hourly boost in fringe benefits with no immediate wage hike—as non-inflationary. The administration holds that the steel companies can absorb that increase in labor costs, smallest in eight years, without raising prices.

Gains in productivity and tax savings on depreciation of recently installed equipment are expected to provide the wherewithal.

Labor also holds that the fringe benefit payments are well covered by past price hikes and by increased productivity—that is, the ability each year to turn out the same steel tonnage with fewer man hours of labor.

Steel management contends this isn't so. It holds that prices should have gone up last fall, and it says the new costs will exceed any expected gain in productivity. The companies contend that profits already are squeezed and will be lowered further unless prices rise.

But most steel company officials know they face three obstacles to raising prices now—domestic competition is keen and excess production capacity means that some other company could produce more and undersell them, should they hike their price lists; foreign steel at lower prices would be available to resentful consumers; and steel's growing list of competitors among other metals, plastics and other materials promises still more new products or increasing price attractiveness.

Just how much of an increase in costs is involved in the new pact being hammered out for July 1 depends on who is doing the figuring.

Steel executives say that labor costs will go up 2.5 per cent under the new pact. This is close to the percentage figure that the administration and the labor unions use in figuring the annual rise in output per man hour.

But steel management contends this. It holds that the average annual increase in productivity is closer to 1.7 per cent.

The gap between this output gain and the increase in labor costs, in the argument of the companies, will have to be filled either by raising steel prices again or by taking a further drop in profit margins.

The dispute illustrates the larger one over just how productivity gains are to be measured. Labor stresses that fewer men are needed now to put out as much goods as in the past because of great strides in mechanization and in production methods. It measures productivity in jobs and hours worked.

Management adds other factors to this. It stresses the cost of the new plants and new machines and the great cost of the automatic devices. It holds that part of the productivity gains should go toward paying such costs and also toward increasing profits out of which still newer devices can be bought and which must be bought if individual companies are to stay competitive.

Postmasters Named WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy nominated Monday Dwight C. Henry as postmaster of Beebe, Ark., and Mary E. Benbrook as Norfolk, Ark., postmaster. The Senate must confirm the nominations.

BANKING ON DEATH

THE STORY: John Thatcher is more than casually suspicious of the surviving heirs to the Schneider estate after the murder of Robert Schneider, one of the heirs. He is calling on Martin Schneider, Robert's cousin, to discuss the tragedy.

Chapter 14 Thatcher automatically braced himself for a wave of evasion and deceit.

"The business is not doing as well as it should. Mind you, there's absolutely nothing wrong fundamentally. Our intrinsic worth is exactly the same. But it won't be for long if we keep on this way. We've already lost several old contracts and unless something happens we're going to lose more. This is a research-minded economy. There are lots of new firms with bright young men and we have to keep up. I keep trying to point out to Arthur that we simply have to put more money into research and development."

At this interesting point, the bell rang and Martin broke off and left for the door. Presently he returned, accompanied by a tall, middle-aged woman who was jerking off her gloves.

"This is John Thatcher of the Sloan, Grace. You remember, he talked with Arthur. This is my cousin, Mrs. Walworth."

Grace Walworth made a perfunctory acknowledgement of the introduction and continued her complaints without pausing for breath.

"I see that I have to come up here to get anything done. There is no use talking to you or Arthur by phone. The only thing it accomplishes is that I become a police suspect!"

Martin grinned maliciously. It was apparent that pouring oil on troubled waters formed no part of his immediate intentions.

"But, you should speak to Mr. Thatcher about that, Grace. He's the man who set the police on us. I myself have already sustained a grilling at the hands of the cops today." He paused long enough for Grace to suck in one long outraged breath and swing her mink coat to one side, presumably to have a clear field of attack, before firing his second shot.

"What's more, he brings even worse news. Robert had children."

"Well," said Grace, impatient of irrelevancies. "Surely, no one can expect us to support them. There must be a mother or something of that sort."

"No, you don't follow me, my dear," continued Martin in tones of immense satisfaction. "Robert's share of the trust goes to his sons. You don't get the extra twenty-five thousand you've been talking about continuously for the last two days."

"What!" She paused to dwell on the late Robert's treachery. "There must be some mistake. They're not grandchildren."

"They don't have to be. Grandfather prepared against all eventualities," replied Martin in more sober tones.

Meanwhile Grace, forgetting her original grievance with Thatcher, ignored his existence completely and turned to Martin for solace.

"Something has to be done. It's all very well for you. No doubt, Hilda is leaving a very substantial sum for you and you don't have many expenses anyway—not justifiable ones at any rate," she added tartly, throwing a bitter and rather envious glance about the room. "But I have to keep

Kid Paret, in Coma 9 Days Dies Monday

NEW YORK (AP)—Benji (Kid) Paret died today—after more than nine days in a coma from brain injuries suffered in losing his world welterweight boxing title.

Death came at 1:55 a.m. at Roosevelt Hospital.

Paret, 25, had developed pneumonia Monday, and the coma deepened.

Doctors had held little hope for his recovery since he was battered senseless by Emilio Griffith in the 12th round of their title fight at Madison Square Garden March 24.

Paret's brother, Antonio, and his manager, Manuel Alfaro, were with him when he died.

His pregnant wife, Lucy, 23, and his mother, Maxima Crespo, were notified of his death and returned to the hospital about 2:30 a.m. The wife had come here from Miami and the mother from Cuba to keep a vigil at the hospital. Mrs. Paret brought their son, Benji Jr., 2, with her from Miami.

As soon as the death was announced, New York City police started a formal investigation, which is routine in all such cases. An informal police investigation had been going on since Paret was carried unconscious from the ring.

The Cuban-born boxer underwent a three-hour brain operation for removal of a blood clot early on the morning after the televised fight. Doctors said "all that can be done has been done."

Chances for his survival were reported as extremely slim from the time he arrived at the hospital, some 45 minutes after the knockout.

Paret's wife, who had urged her husband to give up fighting after he was knocked out by Griffith in their first meeting a year ago, flew to New York from Miami a week ago Sunday. She saw the fatal bout on television.

Liz to Shed Eddie via Divorce

By PIERCE LEHMBECK

NEW YORK (AP)—Rumor has become fact. The three-year marriage of Elizabeth Taylor and Eddie Fisher is broken, and they will obtain a divorce to make the split permanent.

The word got the news through a crisp, businesslike announcement Monday night by Louis Nizer, an attorney famed for handling major divorces of the past, hours after the beautiful Liz had summoned him to Rome.

"Elizabeth and Eddie Fisher announce that they have mutually agreed to part," the announcement said. "Divorce proceedings will be instituted soon."

The announcement brought crashing down a mountain of suspense built up in recent weeks by Miss Taylor's interest in her "Cleopatra" costar Richard Burton, and Fisher's desperation in denying that a break was imminent.

Now there remain other suspenseful questions: will Burton, 36, become the 30-year-old actress' fifth husband? What of his wife, Sybil, and their two children, now sitting in seclusion in London?

There were reports that Mrs. Burton would fight any divorce action by her husband, and that she had pleaded with him through mutual intimates to give up Elizabeth.

Burton, British actor who as Marc Antony makes love to Miss Taylor in her film role of Cleopatra, has been openly escorting her in public during filming of the epic of the Nile.

Fisher, 33, appeared resigned to the breakup as he left for a Broadway show shortly before Nizer read the long-anticipated announcement, approved in advance by both parties.

The boyish-looking singer said he would be in New York only a short time before going to Hollywood.

"I've got to see my kids," he said. "They gotta see me."

Fisher's reference was to his daughter and son by his marriage to actress Debbie Reynolds, a marriage that ended in 1959 after Debbie became enamored with the widowed Liz.

Debbie, now married to shoe magnate Harry Karl, had no comment on the divorce announcement.

Liz and Eddie were married 14 months after Miss Taylor's third husband, producer Mike Todd, died in a big New Mexico plane crash. She was to have gone with Todd on the flight, but was ill at the time.

Thinks TV Needs Some Day Changes

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—What television needs now, quite obviously, are some new, exciting parlor games from which to "adapt" ideas for daytime programs.

Ever since broadcasting decided that the best way to entertain womanhood during its in-home hours was by leading the early schedules with soap opera, reruns of elderly night programs and game shows, it has drawn constant inspiration from children's games.

I have traced network game shows of recent seasons directly to "Pollyanna," "Ghost," "Scrabble," charades, and sometimes to a combination of them. Most of them were puny, maladroit efforts and died quietly. The good game shows, the ones that entertained, survived, but usually they are not highly imitative.

"Window Shopping," ABC's new mid-day game show that started Monday, borrows liberally from what must be the last, untapped parlor game—and after seeing the first show, it is obvious why the game was left severely alone.

The original game is the one in which a tray is covered with various objects and the participants are allowed to look for a minute or so before it is whisked away. The winner is the one who can write down the longest list of objects recalled—in other words, it is an observation test. The television game substitutes photographs—fuzzy and so small the viewers can't make out most objects—and the usual panelists recall one object at a time. It's all extremely dull.

Tennessee Ernie Ford, the fellow with the country-style humor and the city-slicker mustache, also turned up Monday on ABC as a daytime entertainer. As might be expected, it is a low-key, easy-talking, casual program with musical interludes.

If you enjoy watching Ole Ernie, you'll enjoy the show.

Engineer Awarded

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—B. R. Plunkett, a civil engineer for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, was awarded $675 here Monday for an invention enabling easier and more accurate measurement of river bed profiles. Engineers said Plunkett's award was the highest ever received in the Little Rock District or the Southwestern Division which includes eight states.

Arkansas Rally Turns Off Cold

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Arkansas rallied for five runs in the third inning and then was stopped cold by Missouri pitching to drop a 15-7 non-conference baseball game here Monday.

Gary Weaver homered with none on to start the Razorback rally and Jack Whillock slammed a bases-loaded triple.

But the Tigers scored seven big runs in the third and coasted home.

With the score 10-5, Arkansas requested the game be called.

Both teams meet again today.

Sun Ponder in Easy Win at Oaklawn

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Jockey Jack Flesselman piloted H. S. Cohoon's Sun Ponder to an easy three-length victory in Monday's $3,000 feature at Oaklawn Park.

Jacnet Stable's favored Marron finished second, three and a quarter lengths in front of W. Hal Bishop's Phoenix Bird.

Sun Ponder covered the mile and 70 yards of fast track in 1:41 3-5 and returned $24.60 straight.

Monday's crowd of 7,302 wagered $452,138, nearly $60,000 more on the same day last year.

Oaklawn Stewards eliminated Wayne Chambers from contention for riding honors Monday, handing the jockey a 10-day suspension, effective Wednesday.

Chambers, the meeting's second leading rider, will miss the $25,000 add Arkansas Derby Saturday, climaxing the current racing season.

Chambers was cited for careless riding in the $12,500 Oaklawn Handicap Saturday while aboard Gay Revolve, disqualified from second to third.

The $2,700 Arkansas Horse Show Association Purse, feature race on today's Oaklawn card, sends a band of 11 out in the mile and a sixteenth event.

Both W. Hal Bishop and Marion H. Van Berg, perennial rivals at Oaklawn, will be represented by couplings, with Bishop sending out Ship's Hill and Harmony Swing. Van Berg will be represented by Maid of Steel and Cauldron.

Others in the field are Ruth Baker, Landrover, Challenge Ship, King of All, Chendard Bang's Victory and Pick's Choice.

The main wagering support is likely to go to the Bishop and Van Berg entries.

In the final week of the Oaklawn meeting, interest remains high in the $25,000 add Arkansas Derby which will be run at a mile and eighth Saturday, to close the season here.

Remaining as possible starters are 21 of the 28 eligibles for the derby.

They are A. A. Arnaud and H. Estopinal's Touch Bar, John D. Askew's Killogee, Bishop's Durand, Mrs. Jack Carnes' Elgao, Gomer Evans' Mr. Oklahoma, H. M. Florsheim's Bold Prince, Alfredo Stable's Eidolon, Paxton Harthill's Mamolot, George M. Holsinger and Doug Davis Jr.'s Real Hickory.

Jacnet Stable's Poland China, Helen Kellogg's Prince Dale, Marilyn V. Lundy's No Claims, C. B. McNeill's The Nuts, August Muckler's Areopolis and Speedy Nicky, J. C. Pollard's Treasury Note.

Mrs. I. W. Spicer's Wa Wa Cy, Marion H. Van Berg's Bouncer, Charles Vinci's Nivram, G. R. White's Trust Man and C. N. Wilson's Escadal.

White Sox Get That Go-Go Back Again

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

They've got the go-go back in Chicago's White Sox.

The patented peck-away-at-'em attack is lifting eyebrows along baseball's exhibition trail, where the White Sox have reeled off six consecutive victories—the latest a 5-1 triumph over Kansas City at Sarasota Monday.

Outside contenders for the American League throne room the White Sox could unlock the door with a successful combination of their pesky hitting habits and tight pitching performances.

Rookie Joel Horlen, promoted from San Diego after posting a 12-9 record with a sparkling 2.51 earned run average, took care of the pitching end against the A's. The 24-year-old right-hander went six hitless innings before being touched for a lone run.

The hitters continued their exploits without the aid of the home run weapon, stroking nine hits to win it. The White Sox now have scored 44 runs on 64 hits in their six games—with only two bases-empty homers in the output.

The Sox pushed across three runs in the second on four hits, including doubles by Mike Hershberger and Jim Landis, then added two more in the fifth on a double by Gerry McNetney and singles by Luis Aparicio and Nellie Fox.

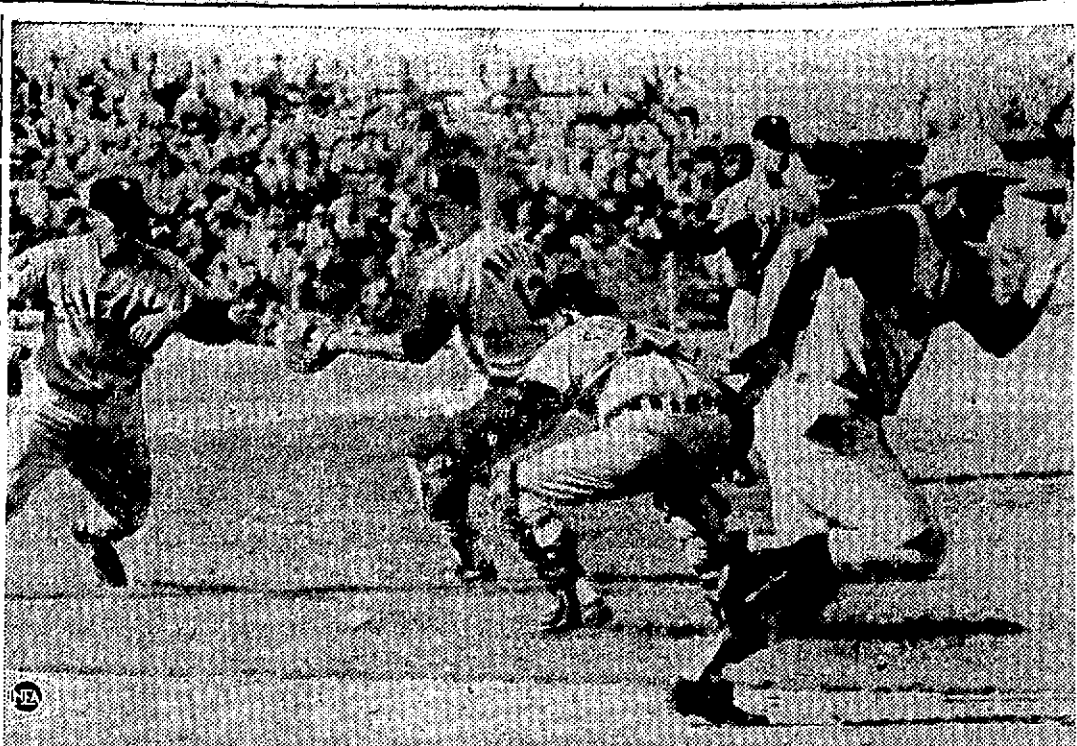

The victory gave the White Sox a 14-9 record, right behind the New York Yankees in the American League standings. The world champions boosted their mark to 15-7 by defeating Minnesota 9-6 at Orlando.

Houston clinched the cactus league championship among those teams training in Arizona and California and also moved into the top spot in the NL standings with a 14-7 record by downing Milwaukee 8-3 at Apache Junction.

In other games, Cincinnati beat the New York Mets 5-2 at St. Petersburg, the Angels edged the Dodgers 6-5 at Palm Springs in the first meeting between the Los Angeles clubs, Boston hopped Cleveland 5-3 at Scottsdale, St. Louis whipped Philadelphia 7-3 at Clearwater and Baltimore took care of Pittsburgh 7-1 in a night game at Miami.

The A's got to Horlen in the seventh for two hits, triples by Bobby Del Greco and Norm Siebern, for their only run. Turk Lown completed a three-hitter. The Yankees used a two-run double by Hector Lopez and an RBI single by Joe Pepitone in the ninth to beat the Twins after Roger Maris' homer built an early lead.

Dick Farrell and Bob Tiefenauer spaced nine Braves' hits, while the Colts went ahead to stay, with a four-run outburst in the third on four hits, including Bob

Two Much for State

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—Arkansas State couldn't overcome an early Mississippi lead and dropped a 7-3 baseball decision to the Rebels here Monday.

Mississippi was paced by Doug Elmore with a single and double and batted in three runs.

Aspromonte's double, Bob Purkey became the first Reds' pitcher to go nine, checking the Mets on four hits. Batterymate Johnny Edwards provided the power with two homers and a single for three RBIs.

The Angels tied the Dodgers in the eighth on Abbie Pearson's three-run homer and won it in the ninth when Joe Koppe drove in Leon Wagner with a single. Lu Clinton stroked a pinch-hit RBI single in the seventh as the Red Sox went in front, then reliever Bill Monbouquette protected the edge against the Indians.

A four-run spurt in the first inning gave the Cards enough to whip the Phils behind the six-hit pitching of Ray Sadecki and Curt Simmons. The Orioles' Billy Hoel gave up six hits and the Pirates' Bob Friend eight as both went nine innings. Shortstop Ron Hansen, on leave from the Army, stroked a two-run single in the second for the runs Baltimore needed.

17 Trophies Won by Local Rifle Club

Hope's Jr. Rifle Club traveled to Henderson, Texas, the past weekend with 22 of its top shooters to compete in the annual NRA Junior Sectional Rifle Tournament consisting of teams from Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas and including ROTC, scholastic, non-scholastic, sub-junior and girls teams, and brought home a total of 17 trophies.

In the 2 and under division, the local club made almost a clean sweep with Gary Rowe, 1st, Larry Yates, 2nd, Johnny Young, 3rd, David Fincher, 4th, Johnny Lowe 6th and Mack Ogran 7th. A Carthage, Texas shooter took 5th place.

In the Sub-junior (13 and under) division, in which there was only one award, Larry Don Wright was high with Mike Westbrook 2nd.

In the Under 15 group, Wright was high standing and 2nd in total (all positions) score, with Westbrook placing 6th. Wright lacked only 1 point winning the high standing for shooters 19 and under in a field of 120 entrants.

Hope's Under 15 team, composed of Wright, Westbrook, Jack Fountain, Keith Byrd and Little Sue Parsons was second high with a score of 1426.

In the open division, Hope's advanced team of David Moore, Sonny Kitchens, Phil McLarty, David Stewart and Tom Felt finished third behind Fair Park ROTC and Center, Texas Team No. 1. There was only 26 points difference between the 1st and 6th place teams.

Celtics Want to End Series Tonight

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Coach Frank McGuire of Philadelphia, sizing up tonight's crucial National Basketball Association playoff game against Boston, said the Warriors big problem will be playing five men against nine.

"Boston has a tremendous bench," said McGuire, whose Warriors must win tonight to stay in the Eastern Division final play-offs. "We've only had six (front line players) all year. With Tom Gola out (sprained right ankle) we're down to five."

The Celtics, in quest of their fourth straight NBA title, lead the best-of-seven series 3 games to 2.

A seventh game, if necessary, will be played in Boston Garden Thursday night.

Meanwhile, the Western Division final playoffs resume in Detroit tonight with Los Angeles, leading 3 games to 2, also only needing one victory to eliminate the Pistons.

NEW SIZE DODGE DART!

Dodge Dart 440 2-Door Hardtop

NEW LOW PRICE

Some new automobiles are just too darn big to drive with any feeling of confidence. There's a couple of feet of useless overhang that doesn't seem to do anything except get in your way.

Then you try loading your family and your goods in a compact and you've got another kind of trouble. Too little room and not enough muscle in the engine department.

What's a man to do? Try the new size 1962 Dodge Dart. It's a totally new kind of Dodge. An automobile without excess overhang and bulky nonsense. It's two feet bigger than America's smallest automobile
